Too Many Facts

Sculpture is subtraction. The figure takes shape as the artist, wielding his chisel, cuts away from the original block all that is surplus.

Something similar happens in a trial. The issues take shape as the judge, wielding the rules of evidence, seeks to cut away whatever is surplus—facts that are not "relevant" to the case. The purpose is to remove those facts that are not important, the better to see those facts that are.

Which facts are relevant? Basically it's a matter of common sense, applied to the circumstances of the individual case. Thus, in a murder trial, the fact that the defendant owned a gun might well be relevant—but not if the slaying was done with a dagger. For then, ownership of the gun would have no logical connection with the murder.

Even if there is a connection, a fact may be held irrelevant if the connection is too slight. Consider these examples:

In an assault case, the court ruled out evidence that the defendant was found drunk—a considerable time after the crime had been committed.

In a theft case, the court ruled out evidence that the defendant often used profanity.

In an abduction case, the court ruled out evidence that the defendant knew a man who had a police record.

Each of these rejected facts might have been interesting enough as a conversational tidbit. But none of them shed much light on the issues before the court. Worse, they could easily have had a prejudicial effect on the minds of the jurors.

To the person on the witness stand, it is often frustrating to be hemmed in by rules of evidence. His instinct may be to tell his story, wide-open style, just as he would at the dinner table.

But, besides the danger of prejudicing the jury, there is the practical necessity of curbing people who can't seem to stick to the point. Too many witnesses resemble the fellow of whom Abraham Lincoln once said:

"He can compress the most words into the smallest ideas of any man I ever met."

With people like that turned loose on the witness stand, the business of justice might never get done.

Hoping to Cure Economy Ills

JARABOCCA, Dominican Republic (AP) — President-elect Joaquin Balaguer hopes to cure the Dominican Republic's ailing economy by reducing the armed forces and cutting deadwood out of overstaffed government agencies.

Resting from the election campaign at the home of a friend in the highlands 80 miles north of Santo Domingo, Balaguer said in an interview: "It will require heroic austerity measures and they will be taken."

Commission to Discuss Asphalt Price

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Wayne Hampton, chairman of the State Highway Commission, said Monday night that attorneys are being consulted about possible price fixing in asphalt sales to the state.

Hampton, of Stuttgart, was in Little Rock for discussions prior to Wednesday's meeting of the commission.

He indicated in an interview with The Associated Press that he believes the commission will announce plans Wednesday to take legal action to recover funds.

"I don't want to say anything definitely," Hampton said. "I've got to talk with the other commissioners, and we may not agree on what happens to be my sentiment right now."

Hampton was asked if negotiations with attorneys indicated steps were being made to begin legal proceedings to recover money.

"Yes, sir," he said. "As far as I'm concerned, we're ready to hire some attorneys and get started."

Gov. Orval Faubus told newsmen Monday that he expected the commission would have a statement to make about its investigation of possible price fixing in asphalt sales.

LBJ Won't Be Silent Much Longer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is too good a politician to stay quiet indefinitely. It's contrary to the way he operates and, as a politician, it's against his instincts.

Besides, time is running out on him.

His has been a life spent in public service and in seeking public approval, with obvious success. But he has lost some ground, as the public opinion polls indicate, and he will have to make up for it.

He has made speeches and statements this year, plenty of them on assorted subjects, interlarding them with pep talks, particularly about the war in Viet Nam.

But they haven't been the kind to arouse a lot of people, or convince them, as the polls seem to indicate.

Always he tried to be optimistic about the war, often when there appeared to be little reason for it, and he has saturated Congress with his programs, although this year Congress is in a slow crawl.

For two years, thanks to the 1964 elections, Johnson has had big Democratic majorities in both houses of Congress to support him. But in less than five months voters will ballot on a new Congress.

Johnson needs the big majorities to sail his programs through the next two years although in a nonpresidential election year like this the party in power figures to lose some seats in Congress anyway.

This year the Democrats probably will suffer more than the usual losses if the voters are disillusioned with the administration, and apparently they are to an increasing degree.

The polls show a diminishing public confidence in Johnson's handling of his job and the war, bad news for anyone as restless as Johnson, and as anxious for approval.

Yet, for many months, despite the great general concern about the war, he has refrained from a full-length explanation to the nation about it, even though this might have helped smother the "doves" and critics on his back.

Silence, however, did have a certain value. The Vietnamese situation, despite some military progress, has been uncertain, with the danger of the government and people in Viet Nam tumbling into political chaos.

If that had happened, after Johnson presented a sunnier picture, the reaction would have been far worse than if he had kept quiet. Johnson could choose to be quiet, and he did. He won't have that choice much longer.

Although this Congress set a fabulous record in 1965, it lost its steam this year and Johnson looks like a poor prophet for predicting it would be ready to complete its work in July.

Now no one is predicting it will finish before Labor Day, at the earliest.

But Johnson will have to make campaign talks for his Democrats before the November elections. He will be a lot more persuasive if the congressional record is good. But, good or poor, he will have to talk.

And once he starts talking about the virtues of his administration, since the war is an overriding American issue, he can no longer delay a full discussion of that, no matter how it looks by November.

If it looks good, of course, he will be way ahead.

Maniac Is Sought for Sex Crimes

World News

LUDWIGSHAFEN, Germany (AP) — Police in three West German states have teamed up to try to track down a sex maniac believed to have killed four women hitchhikers, including two Americans.

The nude body of the latest victim, identified as Eleanor Mae Friday, a student from Escondido, Calif., was recovered from the Rhine River last week. There were strangulation marks about her neck.

Miss Friday disappeared June 9 while en route from Switzerland to Austria. Her body was identified by her brother, Karl, who reported her missing after she failed to appear in an Austrian town where they had planned to meet.

Other similar murder victims were Ann Peterson, 22, of Cleveland, Ohio, whose partly clad body was found south of here 20 months ago. Gerda Oed, 27, whose strangled nude body was recovered from the Rhine 20 miles north of here May 20; and Hedwig Saschew, 38, a nurse, found dead north of Munich on May 23.

AP Feature Writer Dies at 40

NEW YORK (AP) — Eugene Gignert, 40, author of the AP Newsfeatures column, "What Young People Think," died of a heart attack Saturday night at Beth Israel Hospital.

The weekly column will be carried on by his organization, the Gilbert Marketing Group.

Gignert left Northwestern University in his sophomore year to start surveying teen-age opinions for business organizations. He hired thousands of high school pupils as poll takers.

He moved his enterprise from Chicago to New York in 1947 and began his column 10 years ago.

None Happier Over Gold Bars

BOSTON (AP) — When the gold bars were issued Sunday at Northeastern University, none of the new second lieutenants was happier than Donna Newell.

The only girl to be commissioned along with 52 ROTC cadets, Miss Newell, of Lawrence, Mass., says she has dreamed of joining the Women's Army Corps as long as she can remember.

"I wanted to serve my country and I think this is the best way I can do it," said Miss Newell, who also received her bachelor's degree with nearly 3,000 other degree recipients.

Industry Recruiting Graduates

By SALLY RYAN

AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The draft — and the threat of service in Viet Nam — has put a crimp in company recruiting of June college graduates.

An Associated Press survey of company officials and college placement directors found that the draft, the rush to graduate schools and the boom in jobs left recruiters far short of the men they needed.

"This has been one of the toughest years in recent history from the employer's standpoint," said Bill Herman, U.S. Steel Corp. college relations director in Pittsburgh.

Lewis Guthrie, International Business Machines district manager in Miami, said:

"There is a large increase in the number of boys who are going to graduate school to escape the war in Viet Nam. They are very frank about it."

Guthrie said it had cut the number of graduates available at a time when the competition between firms for new men was getting stiffer anyway.

"There were only about 30,000 undergraduate engineering degrees awarded this year, a figure that hasn't changed in recent years," said Robert Becker, manager of professional employment at the Aluminum Company of America, Pittsburgh. "There are fewer people available for more jobs."

Peter Frederickson, Boston University placement counselor, said: "I have a drawer full of unfilled requests, and I understand the same situation prevails in practically all colleges in the country. There are more jobs than qualified youngsters."

March Chiefs Seem to Be Contradictory

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stokely Carmichael, one of the Negro leaders of the march into Mississippi, was hard to pin down on a number of points when questioned on television.

And James Meredith, who began the march June 5, was shot, and now plans to resume the journey, was less than specific when asked if this time he would be armed, although 10 days ago he said he would be armed.

At one point on the CBS radio-television program "Face the Nation," Carmichael, chairman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, said government officials are saying all the time the only hope for Negroes is to go into the Army.

Asked to name any government official who said it, he replied "I can't think of it right now."

He questioned President Johnson's sincerity in wanting Negroes to vote under the 1965 voting rights law. He said if Johnson "is sincere about it, why doesn't he dispatch federal registrars where they are needed?"

The President has sent them to many counties.

Carmichael took another crack at the President by explaining why he and his organization earlier this month refused to take part in Johnson's White House Conference on Civil Rights.

He said "we felt the President was calling the conference at that time when his international prestige was at a low ebb and he was going to use it to try to build up his prestige."

The fact is Johnson first disclosed his intention of calling the conference during a commencement address he made last June at Howard University.

He called the first part of the conference — 250 delegates — into session last November where the plan was made to have a final conference this spring.

Carmichael was asked why — after watching Negroes register in Mississippi during the present march—he later told a group of young people: "Every courthouse in Mississippi should be burned down tomorrow so we can get rid of the dirt."

He said he was talking "literally" — not "figuratively" — and then explained that when he said "burn down" he "meant an analogy used in this country all over by many people."

But "literally" means "actually" and "analogy" means "similar to." He didn't explain what "literally" burning down the courthouses was similar to.

In Mississippi Carmichael has called for "black power" and most of the program was taken up with whether he meant force and violence. He wound up saying nonviolence and violence were "irrelevant" and that "when I myself decide to be violent, if that is my objective, then it becomes acceptable."

But he explained he hasn't urged anyone to violence.

Before starting his march into Mississippi earlier this month Meredith explained his reasons for it: "First we want to tear down the fear that grips Negroes in Mississippi and we want to encourage the 450,000 Negroes remaining unregistered (as voters) in Mississippi."

But in New York on June 9, three days after being shot, Meredith said he would return to take up the march but this time would be armed. Asked Sunday on the NBC television program "Meet the Press" if he would be armed, he avoided a specific answer.

But the point is ironic: he started the march unarmed to help Negroes overcome the fear of being hurt. By saying he would return armed, he was admitting Negroes had a right to be afraid in Mississippi, as he found out.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Between

its live broadcast of the Le Mans auto race in France and of the U.S. Open golf tournament in San Francisco over the weekend, ABC certainly tried to live up to its boast about being "the sports network."

The 24-hour Le Mans grind did not seem worth all the effort and expense. ABC used a French television transmission, fed it to the Early Bird satellite and then to our sets.

The climax as two American cars apparently won first and second place, came in the middle of a thunderstorm with the drivers prudently slowing down. There seemed to be general confusion among the reporters about the outcome. Even racing car driver Phil Hill, ABC's guest expert, repeatedly wondered out loud what was going on.

Generally speaking, long auto races are about as exciting a spectator sport as watching a chess match played by mail.

On the other hand, the U.S. Open, which ABC covered with 17 cameras including one in a hovering blimp, produced real drama even for nongolfers. In the final holes, Billy Casper forged ahead and Arnold Palmer dropped behind so that they finally tied for the lead. It was such a cliff-hanger right up to the last putt that viewers at my house actually were whispering so as not to disturb the players. The playoff is scheduled for this afternoon.

NBC, also in an outdoors mood, premiered a summer series Sunday afternoon called "Sportsman's Holiday." It looks like a quick half-hour patch job of available nature film.

Most interesting was film of animals in their natural habitat on the slopes of Mt. McKinley in Alaska. It was reminiscent, but not as well put together, as Walt Disney's nature studies. This show, however, just was not very interesting.

Friday evening produced on CBS the first of a series of hour shows originally made by the comedy team of Wayne and Schuster for Canadian broadcast. It would have been kinder to have left them there.

The import seemed pretty weak, pallid stuff even for a low-budget, hot-weather time-killer.

Wedding Vows Are Repeated

Mrs. Joe Allen Gazzola, Jr.

A candelight ceremony uniting Miss Linda Verlane McAdams and Joe Allen Gazzola Jr. in marriage, took place May 28 in the Red Springs Baptist Church. The Rev. Jesse W. McAdams, uncle of the bride, officiated at the double ring rites.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Erwin McAdams. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Allen Gazzola, Sr. All are of Texarkana, Texas.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full length gown of Chantilly lace. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell in folds from a tiara of seed pearls and crystals. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis centered with an orchid and showered with white satin streamers.

Mrs. Jackie Neal Burke of Texarkana was matron of honor. She wore a street length dress of blue brocade satin with a matching hat. Her corsage was of blue and white carnations. Miss Verna Gail Harmon of Hope and Miss Cindy Lee Gazzola, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. They wore street length dresses of pink brocade satin.

Jimmy Wayne McAdams was best man. Groomsmen were Jackie Neal Burke of Texarkana and Donald Bruner of Kilgore.

Mrs. McAdams chose for her daughter's wedding a blue linen sheath with matching accessories. The mother of the bridegroom wore green embroidered cotton with beige accessories. Each wore a carnation corsage.

Immediately after the ceremony, a reception was held in the church dining room. The bride's table was covered in white lace over pink caught at the corners with pink satin bows. Mrs. George Calhoun poured the punch and Mrs. Keith McCellon cut the wedding cake.

For travel, the bride chose a beige three piece suit. Her accessories were beige. At her shoulder she pinned a yellow carnation corsage.

After a brief wedding trip, the couple are at home at 841½ Linden in Shreveport where the groom is employed.

Attend Ceremonies for Hero Son

CHICAGO (AP) — Parents of a hero son looked on Sunday as a monument honoring him was unveiled at a lake-front park named in his honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton B. Olive Jr. took part in ceremonies for their son, Pfc. Milton Olive III, killed in action in Viet Nam Oct. 22. Olive threw himself on an exploding grenade to shield his fellow soldiers.

A Medal of Honor was presented posthumously in Washington April 20. Olive's father accepted the medal from President Johnson.

At the park ceremonies were Robert C. Weaver, secretary of housing and urban development; Stanley R. Rector, secretary of the Army and Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

Population Blast Problem in California

By JAMES BOW

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California's booming population some day may mean standing room only amid gray, sooty smog, but state officials report no plans to charge anyone with mission.

A report released Sunday by a research group in Washington, D.C., quoted suggestions that California charge a tax on new arrivals and curb planning of new highways, industries and water supplies.

"You can discourage population by planning the worst school system in the nation," comments Dr. Leslie E. Carbert, state planning officer. "But that is ridiculous."

"How can you tax people for migrating within the United States?" asked Walter P. Hollmann, chief of the state's population research. "That would be thrown out of the lowest court in the land."

The crew-cut Hollmann works in a windowless office in the state library.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown once joked about barricading the borders against migrants but he has asked his staff to ready the state to make room for millions more. Plans must consider everything from sewers to universities.

Hollmann didn't argue with figures published by Robert C. Cook, president of Population Reference Bureau, Inc., that California's net gain of 1,500 new residents a day may mean 1.5 billion people — half the world's current population — in 100 years.

"But any Californian can quarrel with his conclusions," Hollmann added. California's current estimated population is slightly more than 19 million, largest in the nation.

From stormy Watts in Los Angeles to the quiet northern redwoods, much of the current planning to cope with a growing population seems to be racing with no finish line in sight.

Some of the programs include:

—The $2-billion state water project, approved by voters in 1960 to bring water from wet northern California to the arid south through 1990.

—The master plan for higher education, designed to expand the 18 state colleges and nine University of California branches with new campuses to handle hundreds of thousands of students.

—Rapid transit, already begun in the San Francisco Bay area with preliminary studies approved by the Legislature this year for Los Angeles.

Other plans involve smog control, freeways, conservation and business. Private firms continue to grow although aerospace shutdowns in the past in San Diego and Sacramento have caused problems for those cities' expanded populations.

"The fact is we're a growing, balanced economy," Hollmann said.

Chaste Girls Still in Running

Dear Helen: I'm 18. All through my teen years I've dated many different fellows but my date last night took the cake — or tried to.

I have to admit most every guy will try, but most "know" when a "no" means NO. This fellow kept trying until I gave him a punch.

When he finally realized I was serious he was terribly surprised. He said he figured I was just putting on an act, as most girls do.

Then he told me every girl he ever dated expected it. I thought I would die of shock!

Well, we spent the rest of the evening discussing our views on this matter of going all the way. As it turned out, we ended up having a good time and becoming pretty good friends. I think I really won him over because he wants to see me again — on my terms.

My question is? Am I undersexed, or are those other girls he dated oversexed? — Carole

Dear Carole: Neither, probable. You simply live by a different set of values. But you're glibbie if you fall for the male line, "All girls give in." That was old, even in my dating days when we called it the "male lyn."

Round-heeled gals are, if anything, undersexed. They just swallow the line with least resistance because they're anxious to please, a little dumb, and want to be where the action is even if it means acting very friendly — constantly.

Best way to set a Lothario back on his heels is to tell him you're selective, and, with a gentleman, it's always "ladies' choice." This keeps you chaste and him chasing. — H.

Mother Takes Credit, Gives Blame

Dear Helen: My mother work and I know she comes home tired, so I do quite a bit to help her. I clean house every Saturday, and don't go out because my boy friend works Saturday night.

Then on Sunday, when company comes, my mother goes on and on about how hard she works in the house, getting it fixed up, while all I ever do is sit around with a book in my face all the time.

I don't mind her taking credit but I think I should get a little too.

If I get invited to go anywhere during the week, she makes up a list of everything I have to do or else I can't go — and usually she gives it to me just before the date, so I have to work instead of going. If she doesn't want me out on week-night, why doesn't she say so, instead of making like it's my fault because I'm "lazy." — Motherless

Dear Motherless: Here are suggestions that might help: Make a list of everything you do for your mother, then ask her what she wants added to it. Post the list in the kitchen & refer to her when each job is finished even, sometimes, in front of the Sunday company.

Get a definite ruling on week-day dates, and "ask ahead," then put them down on your calendar.

And always remember mothers and daughters look at life through different eyes. Perhaps her letter to me would surprise you — and me. — H.

Dear Helen: My girl friend and I are almost 16, but sometimes we act like eight-year-olds, just for the fun of it. Other day we went to the park and played on the seesaws and tried hopscotch and jump rope. We aren't jerks — we like dances and dates too. What I mean is those girls who say it's awful to grow up and be "ladies" do not have to grow up all that fast. At 16, you can be in two worlds and have fun in both — Older Hopscotcher

Dear O. H.: True! At 16, doing "young" things just for kick is more fun than when you did them for real. — H.

Paintings Are Given to British

LONDON (AP) —David M. Koetser says he's bought so many paintings in Britain "I felt I owed her something in return" — so he gave London's National Gallery a painting by Titian valued at $420,000.

Koetser is formerly of New York. The painting's $420,000 value was given by art experts during a government hearing on an earlier request by Koetser to export it.

The first U.S. gas franchise was issued to a Baltimore light company in 1816.

5 Wins Buoy U.S. Hopes at Wimbledon

By GEOFFREY MILLER

Associated Press Sports Writer
IMBLEDON, England (AP) — Five victories in the opening round of the Wimbledon Tennis Championships have buoyed American hopes for success in the Davis Cup.

George MacCall, nonplaying captain of the American team, watched Dennis Ralston, Cliff Richey, Clark Graebner, Charlie Pasarell and Marty Riessen all advance on Monday and he was delighted with the showing.

"All these boys are in good form," MacCall smiled. "If their record over recent months is studied, the World will see that we are very much in contention for the Davis Cup this year."

MacCall must pick a team to play Mexico at Cleveland in the American Zone Cup Playoffs Aug. 13-15.

"I think there's going to be a dog fight for those Davis Cup places," MacCall said. "The selection is wide open."

Ralston, of Bakersfield, Calif., defeated Robert Lutz of San Francisco 7-5, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4.

Richey, of Dallas, Tex., won a tough duel with Britain's Graham Stilwell, 4-6, 2-3, 6-1, 15-13.

Graebner, of Beachwood, Ohio, downed 1962 Wimbledon finalist Martin Mulligan of Australia, 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.

Pasarell, of Santurce, Puerto Rico, hammered Peter Pokorny of Austria, 6-3, 6-1, 6-3.

Riessen, of Evanston, Ill., got a walkover. His opponent, Barry Phillips-Moore of Australia, failed to show up.

Australia's Roy Emerson, aiming for this third straight Wimbledon title, had an easy 6-0, 6-1, 6-2 passage against Harry Fauquier of Canada.

Fred Stolle, the lanky Australian who has lost in three Wimbledon finals, also showed impressive form in disposing of Ingo Buding of West Germany, 6-2, 6-2, 4-6, 6-2.

These two could be defending the Davis Cup for Australia again. But MacCall said, "We could well have the edge over them this time."

"Graebner has beaten Roy Emerson three times in seven months. And Pasarell has not lost in his last four matches against Emerson and Stolle — and they were all on grass."

The player MacCall would probably like to have most may be unavailable. That would be Arthur Ashe, the UCLA star now serving a tour of active duty with the U.S. Army.

"He comes out Aug. 4," MacCall said. "Then he'll have to wait for his recall. We'll just have to hope (he is) available — at least for one match."

Ortiz also made a short talk Monday night at the Civic Arena after he stopped Bizzarro on a technical knockout in 2:29 of the 12th.

"I knew I would catch up with him," said the 135-pound champion. "I had hurt him with body punches. He really was hurt. The referee did the right thing to stop it. He used very good judgment."

Referee John (Buck) McTierman stepped between the two men when the challenger from Erie, Pa., came up wobbly after taking a mandatory eight-count. Bizzarro had been shaken up with several punches before he finally went down.

"He was standing there with his hands down," said McTierman. "I had to stop it."

Bizzarro, 133-5, disagreed. "I think he could have let us go a little longer," he said.

Ortiz, 135, held a narrow lead on the three official cards—51-49 by referee McTierman, 52-50 by judge Ernie Sesto and 50-49 by judge Paddy Grimes. The AP had it even 51-51, with Ortiz coming on.

Ortiz has ambitions to move into the welter class but is willing to defend his lightweight crown against Flash Elorde (in New York or Manila) or against Sugar Ramos (in Los Angeles or Mexico City).

Teddy Brenner, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, hopes to convince Ortiz to box Elorde or Frankie Narvaez in the Garden next fall when Carlos' political campaign may be at its height.

The promotion laid an egg. The crowd of 4,204 paid $31,000. Ortiz had been guaranteed $41,000 and Bizzarro $3,850. Ortiz also was to get half of the television money from a 60-station network. That might come to another $7,500. It was estimated the promoters dropped about $21,000.

Fed Pigeons, Goes to Jail

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Geri Southworth, cited for violating a San Francisco ordinance forbidding feeding pigeons on public property, is sentenced to jail and that's where she is today.

She got the citation Tuesday in Civic Center Plaza as she fed the birds.

Mrs. Southworth, 52, told Art Schaffer, assistant district attorney, in City Hall "I don't need counsel. I want to plead guilty. I did it. I fed the pigeons. I'm guilty and I'll do it again."

The judge sentenced her to 30 days.

Palmer Fades, Casper Wins the U.S. Open

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Sports Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Arnold Palmer's head was down, his shoulders slumped and his forehead creased as he trudged morosely over the last few holes of his U.S. Open Golf Championship playoff with Billy Casper.

He'd lost in two previous Open playoffs — to Jack Nicklaus and Julius Boros — but the double disaster over the back nine of the Olympic Country Club course was something new to the onetime master of the game.

"It's an experience I haven't had," the bewildered Palmer said Monday.

"I can't figure it. I just can't figure it. I didn't hit bad shots but I got bad results."

Someone asked how this one compared with his other playoffs.

"Pretty darn similar," Palmer said.

Maybe so. Maybe not. His doubtful that he never wanted to win one more. And it's almost certain that no one ever blew higher.

He had this one won Sunday when he had a seven-stroke lead with nine holes to go in the fourth round. He blew to a 39 on the back nine and settled for a tie with Casper at 278.

Monday, in the playoff, he was two up at the turn when the game he thought had been repaired again split at the seams under the pressure of Casper's key putts.

Palmer had been in a year-long decline from his position as the game's dominant figure when he failed to make the cut in the Open a year ago.

It was then that he started the comeback. He went home to the rolling hills of Western Pennsylvania and the Laurel Valley course to repair his game.

It looked as if he had something going. He won two tournaments early this year and appeared to be on the rebound.

After a third round 66 put him in the lead, it appeared that Open was going to be the climax to that comeback, the big title that would put him again at the top.

Ortiz Turns to Politics in the Bronx

By JACK HAND

Associated Press Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Carlos Ortiz switches from face punching to baby kissing today as he hustles home to the Bronx to begin his political campaign after stopping Johnny Bizzarro in the 12th round of his latest lightweight title defense.

"I am going to take boxing gloves with me to show the people I will be a fighting senator," said the Puerto Rican-born New Yorker who is running for the New York State Senate in the 29th District primary June 28.

"I am going to emphasize the miseries I went through, the way I used to live in poverty and the way my people are mistreated," said Ortiz. "I'm going to make speeches all over my district."

Ortiz also made a short talk Monday night at the Civic Arena after he stopped Bizzarro on a technical knockout in 2:29 of the 12th.

DO-IT-YOURSELF

Call Your Spade a Spade But Don't Forget to Shovel

BY MR. FIX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A square-pointed shovel, turned up on the sides, is a scoop and it's no good for digging. And a shovel with a square, straight blade is no shovel but a spade. A real shovel is rounded and pointed and great for digging but it's not a spade.

Trivial? Confusing? Perhaps, but knowing which tool to use is half the job, even for so simple a chore as digging a hole. The other half is knowing how to use it with a minimum of strain and effort.

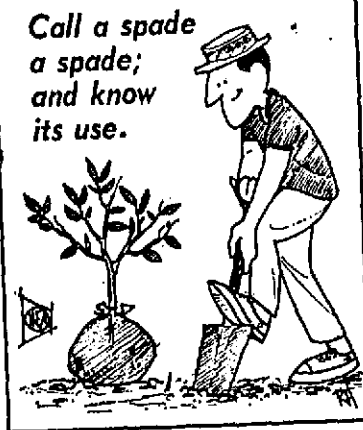

The square spade is the one you want for gardening. It's great for transplanting because its sharp, straight edge will cut through roots that would slide past a round blade. You can use it for edging, for digging a square trench and for lifting sod in neat, square patches that are of an even thickness. The round-pointed shovel is for digging holes and getting out the dirt. Because of its point it cuts into the earth more easily. Its rounded sides will hold dirt that you lift out of the hole. Thus, you would use a spade to dig up a plant for transplanting and a round-pointed shovel for digging the new hole in which to transplant it.

Pick Right Tool

Round-pointed shovels come with long or short handles. The long handle extends your reach and saves you from bending over. The long handle gives you greater leverage. The short handle is an aid in working in confined areas close to shrubs and trees or down inside a hole. When you buy a shovel, look it over carefully. Rest its blade flat on the floor. Some handles rise at a sharper angle than others. An almost straight blade and handle are the best combination for digging. A handle that rises sharply is best for lifting loads.

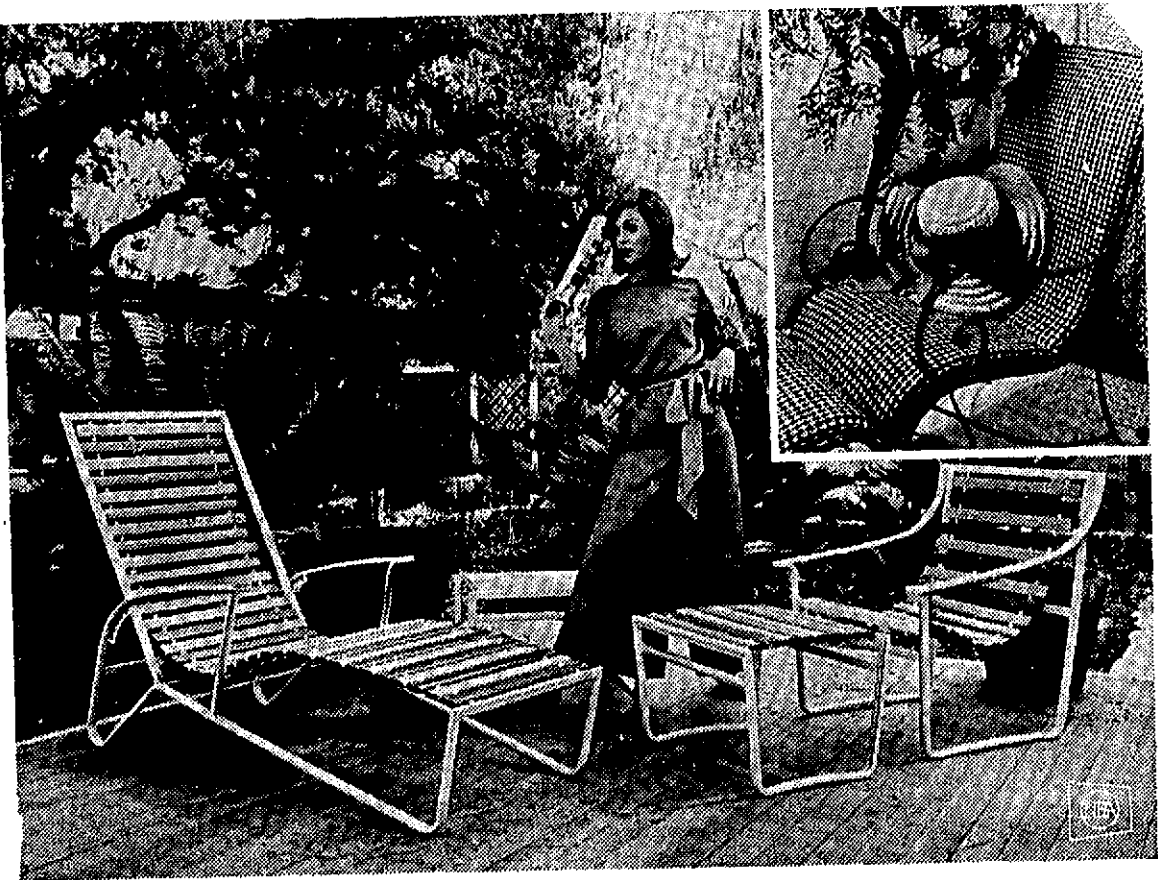

Most amateurs tire quickly when digging because they use the wrong methods. The blade should be driven straight into the ground, not at an angle. Your full weight goes on the blade when you press down with your foot on a blade held straight.

Call a spade a spade; and know its use.

Color, Comfort Key Outdoor Items

Stress on comfort won awards for this outdoor furniture design for Samsonite. Shaped to the body, it is of hollow plastic sections with resilient suspension. Importance of color also is carried through in the white frame with orange/yellow or blue/green plastic sections or olive and two-tone green. The hat in inset isn't a bonnet but a pillow by Bloomcraft to punctuate the patio in a variety of colors.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Half the U.S. population may be under 28 but there are a few oldsters left with memories. With the continuing adoration of youth, though, one wonders how many of the "elderly" will admit they remember the rustic hometown-made outdoor furniture that creaked under more than one generation's use.

There also were the cozy wicker chairs, touched up each summer with a coat of white paint. Nostalgic though these pieces were when seen sitting on the favorite porch or in the back yard, thank heavens they are passing from the scene. Why? Because few designs of this ilk soothed the back or "sit" bones.

Today's sit-at-homes relay in chairs and chairs designed for comfort. Color, too, is taking off in this field formerly considered frisky when webbing first was offered in blue/white or green/white. These two color companions still are big in the outdoor furniture field. But in the aluminum chair set the color-conscious homemaker can turn to pumpkin, avocado, orange and yellow and iridescent.

More color, too, has come to the frames with one manufacturer with outdoor furniture divisions (Hamilton-Scotch) adding an ice-blue finish in anodized aluminum and an antique finish called patina green.

Stress of better design for comfort and good looks appears in the middle to high price range. As with all design innovations, contouring and use of webbing with better snap-back quality will filter down eventually to many of the budget-priced pieces.

Contouring of seating to the shape of the human body plus some other features, in fact, brought several design awards this year to one outdoor furniture collection (Samsonite Sunrest). The collection, which even includes a loveseat, features hollow plastic sections on a cold-rolled steel frame. The resilient suspension system contours the sections and the effect is similar to lounging in a hammock.

Topping off the color and comfort for the outdoors are the longer-lasting, easy-to-care-for baked enamel, anodized aluminum finishes and webbings of sturdier synthetics. And for the homemaker who handles the furniture, firms are making pieces that fold flat to take up less storage space.

Take Tan In Stages

Build a sun tan slowly and ward off excessive skin dryness. How do you do this? Observe the rules of sunbathing and limit your first exposures to 10 to 20 minutes a day until your skin shows some color. Burning and a too deep tan—like a Bermuda mahogany—cause permanent damage to your skin. The few compliments you get from your friends are not worth the early aging such a deep tan heralds for your complexion.

Change Deodorants

Keeping fresh during warm days is difficult. As the body changes during the years, it may be necessary to experiment with new deodorants to find one more effective than one used for many years.

Day-Bright

FRESH AS A summer morning and cool as a breeze is this easy-to-wear two-piece. The reason for all this is the bright-banded scoop-neckline; the very sleeveless overblouse; plus slightly fitted top which continues into a pleated and carefree skirt. Truly a style meant for many pleasant summer happenings. If you like, make it with short sleeves and frame the neckline with the soft bow-tied collar. An accompanying Coordinator shows ways to vary this young costume as for choice of fabric, color and accessories. B-90 is for sizes 9, 11, 12, 13, 14, 16, 18. Bust 30½ to 38. Size 11, bust 31½, 3¾ yards of 35-inch fabric.

Take It Easy

Take it easy. Slice off a chunk of earth only four to six inches thick. A bite much thicker than that is harder to move, harder to lift and more work to break up. Once you've taken a bite of earth, rock the shovel back and forth to loosen it. Get one hand down near the blade when you lift the load. Keeping your grip too far back on the handle allows the load on the blade to exert leverage. Stand with your feet apart, not together, when you lift and toss a load of dirt. You won't tire as quickly.

Keep your shovel handle smooth and free of splinters. Wipe it with linseed oil to preserve the wood.

A spade or shovel will be easier to use if it is sharp. A few strokes with a file will keep it in condition. Keep the blade clean. Wipe or wash off clinging dirt. Keep the blade dry. Wipe with oil over long periods of storage to prevent rust.

Add Bright Ideas: Scriptless Film

BY DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)
FOOTLOOSE AND FANCY FREEWAY—

Anthony Newley wants to direct a movie and he has a wild idea—an improvisational film, with the actors only having the basic plot line but no script. There may be at least one cast change in Petticoat Junction this year—Gunilla Hutton may be out as Billie Jo. . . . Dennis Day is the lyecon type—he's on the board of directors of eight large corporations. . . . Most of the quickie gag books prompted by television shows leave me luke-cold but I think Don Adams' "Would You Believe?" is very funny. . . . Diane Baker is off for a vacation in Greece, a trip she's been planning for several years. . . . George Pal is getting ready to reissue his "tom thumb" feature—it's been seven years and a new generation of children is ready for it.

Sid Caesar had to lose 20 pounds for his role in Bill Castle's ghostly comedy, "The Spirit Is Willing." He came down from 224 to 205, using his own special M.O.—Modus Overweight. He just cuts down on the amount of food he eats.

"It's pretty hard," he says, "to leave most of a fine filet or just to sample a tasty desert. But you get used to it; eating too much is a habit you can overcome."

"I feel great now. And I'm going to stay at this weight if I can. The only trouble is I'm hungry all the time."

Even before his celebrated front-page dates with Lynda Johnson, George Hamilton was on his way to the top. He says it was a tough fight.

"Three years ago," he says, "a producer told me I'd gone as far as I could go as a juvenile lead, that I wouldn't work for three years. I was scared. So I decided I had to do other things to tide me over that period. I did a lot of television. I did summer stock. I went to Europe and did some movies there. And, you know what, my income tripled in those three years. Besides, now I'm recognized as a leading man, not a juvenile."

Bette Davis is looking for a small house here. It would be her first in some years.

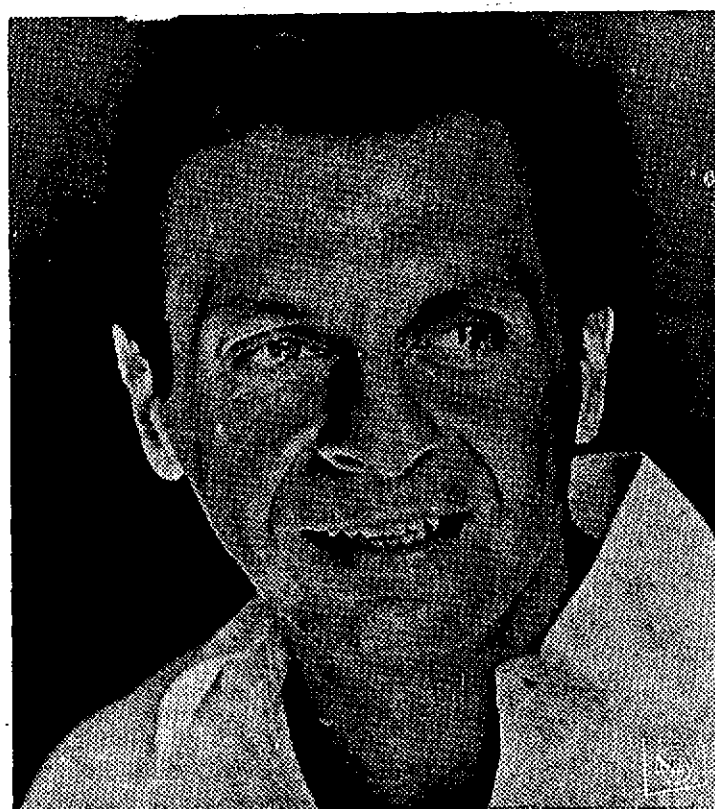

"California is growing up," Bette says. "It used to be that as soon as a picture was over, I'd leave—I couldn't stand it here. Nobody talked about anything except the picture business. But now I find some intellectual stimulation here. This place is coming of age."

There's more to a successful movie career than a lot of money and six cars in the garage. Tony Curtis cites one of the more delightful fringe benefits.

"Look at this," he said, showing me a letter from a front-page figure. "The opportunities are so great in this business of meeting important and stimulating people. I've met Melvin Belli and the painter, Buffet, and writers and newspapermen. And I get to talk to them on equal terms."

"And there's travel, too. I've been all over. But some actors are so stupid, they don't take advantage of this chance. I have a friend who did a film in Paris and stayed in his hotel room, playing poker, the whole time he wasn't working. He was too scared to go out. What a waste."

Sahl at Wit's End

THRUST AND PARRY—Mort Sahl has been taunting and teasing the establishment for more than a decade. Now he finds there is a paucity of material for his comic fencing.

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — For more than a decade, Mort Sahl has been taunting and teasing the establishment, with his political-sociological thrusts.

He has kept millions happy—and an undetermined number angry—over the years, but has he accomplished anything, constructive with it all?

Sahl thinks so. In fact, he believes he has achieved two worth-while ends, over and above supporting Mort Sahl.

"In the first place," he says, "I started a lot of people thinking. A whole generation has grown up and heard stuff from me they never heard before. The college kids, especially."

"Secondly, until I came along there were no so-called cerebral comedians. I opened it up for Shelley (Berman) and Newhart and Cosby and the rest of them."

It wasn't easy. Sahl's early career was marked by a conspicuous lack of success. He tried to conform at first, and it wasn't until well into the first major engagement—at San Francisco's hungry i—that Roughing it at the beach takes many interpretations. The bikini and ardent summer outdoor set rarely pack without a complete refreshing wardrobe of powder, spray cologne or spray bath oil all in one co-ordinated scent.

the kind of man who wants to see all the Red Chinese driving Mustangs."

Sahl says, however, that he doesn't quite get the thrill of the chase he once did in pouring it on the Washington scene.

At first, he says, he was accepted because the audience thought of him as "the team spokesman — I attacked Ike and Nixon and all the Republicans." The liberal audiences were enchanted.

But, in '60, when the liberals became the Ins and the conservatives were the Outs, Sahl kept on attacking the Ins. And the liberals considered him almost a traitor to his group. For a time, Sahl says, there was a blacklist of him by the night club owners, mostly liberals.

Today, however, Sahl is covered with work. He still has his concerts and now he has a weekly television show in Los Angeles, with possibilities for its syndication. He is also taking a fling at acting—he had a part in the just-completed "Three For a Wedding," and this summer he'll do "A Thousand Clowns" in stock.

He has also just opened a club in Westwood, close to the UCLA campus, called The Up-rising. He hopes it will become his home base.

Still, there are problems. One of his chief worries these days is, "Whom can I attack now?" When you think about it, the pickings are lean.

"The extreme left and extreme right," he says, "are out of fashion these days. They're not worth attacking any more. I think the middle is the most vulnerable today."

One of his chief targets now is American foreign policy. He is given to saying things like "our policy seems to be to wait around until Mao dies, and then hope that whoever takes over is a good guy—

the kind of man who wants to see all the Red Chinese driving Mustangs."

Sahl says, however, that he doesn't quite get the thrill of the chase he once did in pouring it on the Washington scene.

The seams at the waistline inch where the bodice is fitted close to the body as in these dresses. Armholes will be more comfortable if the sleeve seams are clipped.

Three hem finishes are shown. Easiest to do is to run a machine gathering thread at the top of the hem as in A. Draw this up just enough so that the hem will lie flat. You can slip stitch this to position or ease a seam binding on over the gathered edge as in B. Ease is important as the binding must never be stitched or the hem will draw.

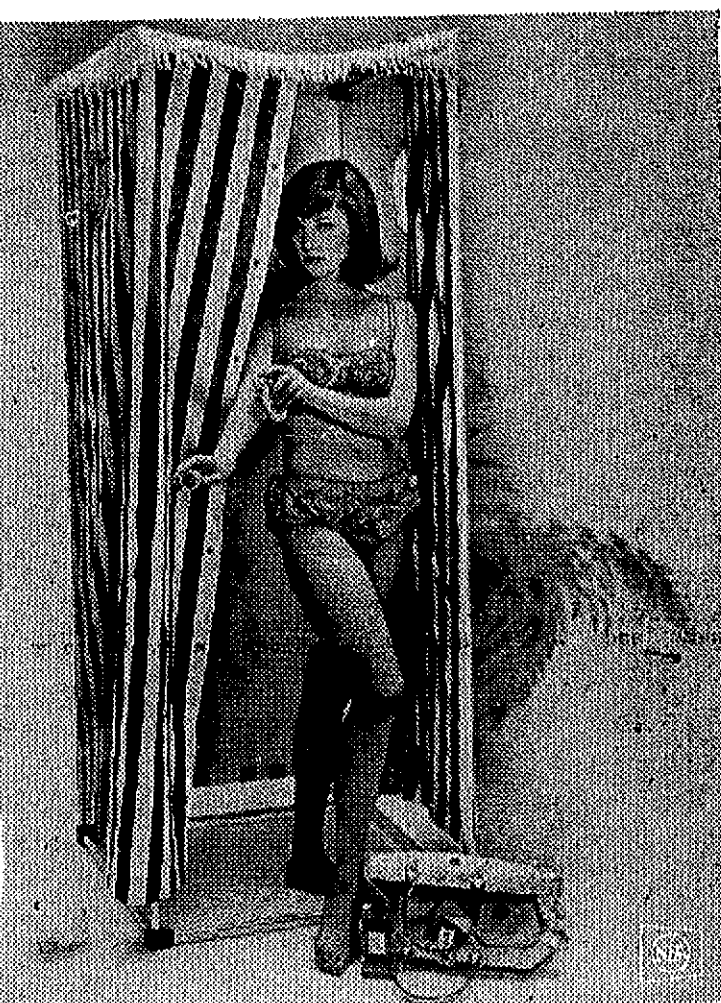

A firmly woven fabric in linen, a blend or Indian Head is ideal for this type of dress.

Self or contrasting binding may be used or any of the lovely novelty braids that are available.

We show also how the hem edge can be trimmed evenly—a fitted facing as used in C. This is held to place with rows of decorative stitching. The top of the facing is trimmed up close to the last row of stitching as in D. Shown in E is a plain fitted facing. Top edge F is clipped, turned and stitched. Then the facing is slip stitched to place as in G.

Homosexual Behavior Legal

London (AP) — The British House of Lords has voted 78 to 60, to approve a bill that would legalize homosexual behavior by adults in private. But a similar bill is not expected to come up soon in the House of Commons.

The House of Commons approved a similar bill in principle during its last session but then dropped it prior to the March 31 election. No member has tried to introduce it again.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Consider Vacation Area's Effect on Your Health

BY WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Most persons remain as well while traveling as when they are at home, but even a minor illness can take all the fun out of your vacation.

For that reason it is a good idea to have a physical check-up, including a dental examination, before you start your trip. If you plan to leave the country, ask your doctor about the vaccinations you will need.

The United States Public Health Service recommends vaccination against typhoid, tetanus, poliomyelitis and diphtheria for everyone. This is in addition to a smallpox vaccination which must have been done within three years of your latest return to the United States and validated with the official stamp of your local or state health department. Failure to comply with this regulation may mean detention for up to 14 days.

If you are returning from a country where cholera, yellow fever, typhus or plague are prevalent, you must also have valid proof of vaccination against these diseases.

When planning your trip it is well to consider the effect on your health of the area you expect to visit. If you have fever you will find a welcome absence of ragweed in Europe, Bermuda and the Virgin Islands. If you have asthma or other respiratory diseases a warm, stable climate is recommended.

If you have a gastrointestinal disease or an easily upset digestive tract, your best bet is a cold climate. If you have a heart disease, high blood pressure or a circulatory disorder, you should avoid high altitudes.

Some thought should also be given to your wardrobe. In hot humid areas your clothing should be light in weight and color, loose in fit and preferably linen or cotton. For high altitudes you must be prepared for warm days and cold nights. For cold countries provide yourself with woolen night wear including a sleeping cap and bed socks. For any country it is wise to have a raincoat and a jacket or sweater. Take shoes that are well-broken in. If you wear glasses, carry not only an extra pair but also your prescription.

Wherever you go, you must eat. In most countries pasteurized milk is safe but to be on the safe side you should use only boiled milk. The sanitary standards of large hotels in most cities are on a par with those in this country but visit quaint little out-of-the-way restaurants at your own risk. You should avoid cream or custard-filled pastries, meringues and salads. Stick to well-cooked foods except for raw fruits that you can peel for yourself.

DRIFTING ALONG WITH THE GULF STREAM — A scientifically specialized underwater vessel, pictured in scale model, is being developed by Grumman Aircraft Engineering Co. for an upcoming ambitious project of famed undersea explorer Dr. Jacques Piccard. To be launched in 1967, the PX-15 will carry Piccard and four crewmen on a 1,500-mile underwater journey from Florida to Nova Scotia, drifting with the Gulf Stream at a constant depth, for a study of oceanographic phenomena and marine life.

South Blocks West Defense

By JACOBY & SON
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Way back in 1934 the late Walter Malowan was a youngster of only 49. He started an article in the Bridge World magazine as follows:
"I have been openly and surreptitiously accused of making more no-trump bids than any three good players together. I do not deny this statement, but I do claim that there is a method in my madness."
He pointed out that defense against no-trump is usually harder than against a suit contract and showed some hands that produced no-trump games for him.
His first example was a hand with which most players would have doubled two hearts and probably collected a 300-point penalty. Walter bid three no-trump and won a two-game rubber.
His explanation of the play was, "West led the king of clubs and continued with the queen. I allowed both to hold because I wanted to deprive West of any possible club exit card. West had to shift at trick three but he made it as hard for me as possible by leading his one diamond. I ran off my five diamonds after time out to collect dummy's ace of clubs and then played ace and a small spade. West cashed two spade tricks but had to lead to my ace-queen of hearts to give me my ninth trick."

While Walter could have taken the first club or the second club his method simplified the development of the eventual end play and made the whole hand almost routine.

PREFAB HIDEAWAY

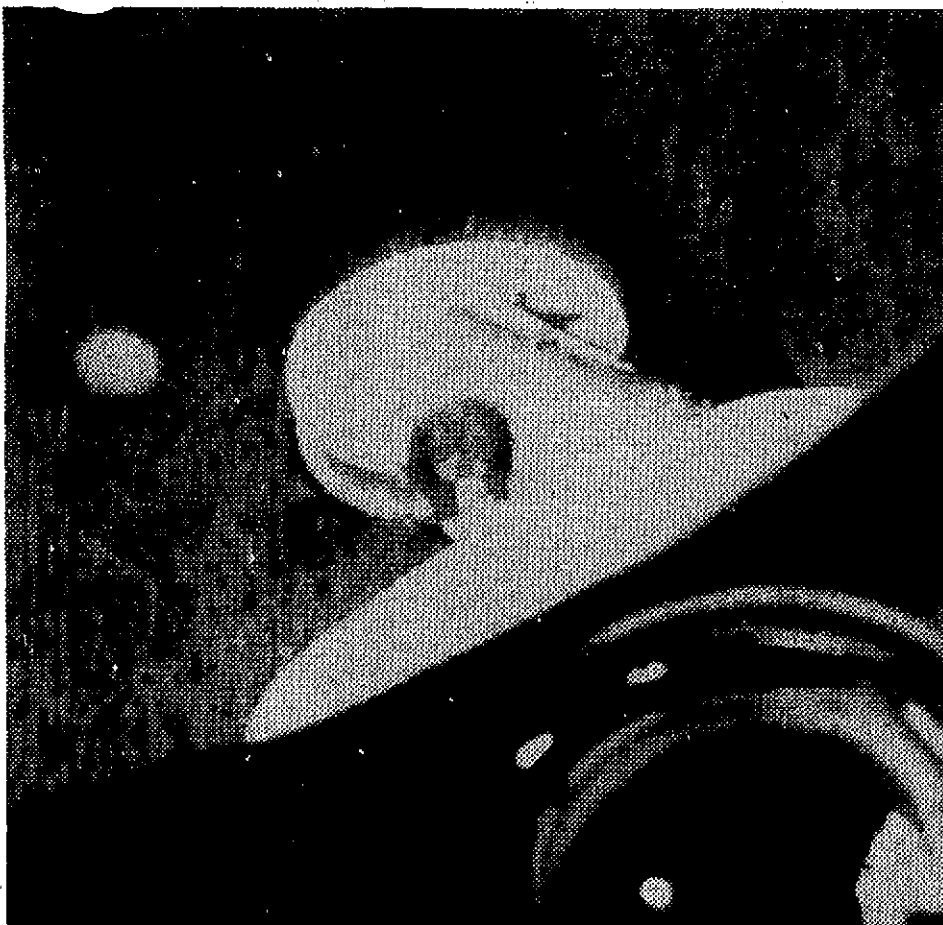

Something new in the way of assemble-it-yourself products is catching on on the West Coast. It's a prefabricated redwood house that can serve as a back-lot hideaway or a full-fledged vacation home. The house, 608 square feet and valued at some $3,500, includes a living room, bedroom, den or second bedroom, kitchen, bath and porch and can be erected in two-and-a-half days. All parts made of wood plus complete assembly directions come with the package.

DETROIT (NEA)—Safety features are big in this fall's new cars, thanks to Washington. In general, auto companies are applying the government's safety specifications for new cars it buys to all cars built, and in some cases going farther for standard and optional features car buyers will find in their 1967 models. Stress now is on interior modifications to reduce "second collision" injuries. Improvements to help avoid the first collision will come later.

Starting at the beginning in studying the impact of man on natural water resources, the Interior Department's Geological Survey is establishing research stations on 36 "undisturbed" stream sites. Purpose is to determine how streams behave in their natural state in order to evaluate the ultimate effect of such human-originated influences as stream diversions, storage dams, pollution, dredging and industrial use on the nation's water resources. Sites selected as still relatively free of man's influence are:

- 1) North Fork Quinalt River, Wash.
- 2) Swiftcurrent Creek, Mont.
- 3) Hayden Creek, Idaho
- 4) Minam River, Ore.
- 5) Crater Lake, Ore.

Can't Make People Hire

When legislated minimum wages are artificially boosted by political pressures, rather than by ability to earn, potential employers are reduced and new unemployment rolls are created. The millions of average citizens with a limited amount of money to spend for housework, yardwork, farmwork, and a hundred and one every day chores, will not pay an unduly high minimum wage because they cannot.

More and more labor saving machinery will be used in all walks of life. Its use will increase in the home, on the farm and in all business and industry. Stores and factories will become more automated and serve-yourself and do-it-yourself products and practices will multiply. By legislated handicaps, opportunities for unskilled persons to learn are reduced, relief rolls are increased and the inflation ball rolls on.

You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink. And this applies to persons with limited dollars to pay unskilled help. The lawmakers can tell you what you must pay, but they can't make you hire. — Anniston (Ala.) Star.

Welfare Rolls Crowded With People Idle Because of Minimum-Wage Rule

The notion prevails in union and government circles that it's better for a person not to work at all than to work for less than the specified minimum wage. That peculiar idea is one reason a "war on poverty" is necessary, and why so far it has been no sensational success.

It is granted that the unions and the government wage-and-hour regulations have ended the evil sweatshop toil, of long hours of labor for a pittance. Still, it doesn't make much sense to say that a person is better off to work less than the union or the government sets as the minimum. And that is especially true when the specified minimum happens to be more than the prevailing wage or the amount an employer can afford to pay.

The effort to get Appalachia on its feet economically has been seriously handicapped by the stupidity of federal regulations and union pressure, which have forced small businesses to close and workers to become idle. The anti-poverty program has been slowed down by the insistence that unskilled trainees be paid a minimum wage that their supervisors get. The coal fields of Eastern Kentucky are full of men who are on relief because the union won't let them work for less than the high union scale.

It would be wonderful if everybody could get high wages for whatever they do, but it is an economic fact that wages must be related to productivity. When wage scales are artificially held at a high level, a lot of people who could be working are kept idle, a lot of business firms that could be productive are shut down or never even start, and the lines of welfare recipients grow longer and longer. And the labor unions and the Johnson administration are trying to solve the problem by raising the minimum wage still higher. — Lexington (Ky.) Leader.

Pressure to Cut Forces in Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said today the pressure for cutting U.S. forces in Europe are legitimate and must be seriously considered.

But he said the United States has no plans to reduce its European combat capability "in the present circumstances." And he bluntly told senators worried that U.S. military strength is being spread too thin:

"Let me state simply and categorically that the United States is capable of maintaining its combat capability in Europe while continuing to meet planned troop deployments to Southeast Asia."

Anderson Quits Board of Hospital

Roy Anderson resigned from the board of Hempstead County Memorial Hospital in a letter read to the board meeting Monday night, an action taken just 10 days before his seven-year term expires June 30.

A check of official records at the courthouse this morning disclosed no evidence that he was to be re-appointed at the expiration of his term next week.

Mr. Anderson, insurance executive and widely-known civic leader, was a member of the Hospital Building Committee, and then appointed to the operating board.

Present board members appointed by former County Judges C. Cook and U. G. Garrett are: Monroe Samuel of De Ann, chairman; Mr. Anderson, treasurer; Mrs. E. P. O'Neal, secretary; and Cecil Cox of Fulton. Members appointed by County Judge Orie Byers are: Ray Turner, Claud H. Sutton, and Frank J. Hill.

Hospital administrator is Charles W. Wilson, native of Columbus with 35 years of hospital management experience. C. L. (Bill) Cross, is assistant.

Mr. Anderson's letter of resignation follows:

To the Board of Directors of Hempstead County Memorial Hospital.

This will be my last meeting with you officially. Please accept my resignation as a member of the Board. My term of office will expire June 30, 1966, and the reason of my resignation now is so the Honorable County Judge will have ample time to appoint my successor before July 1st, when Medicare starts with Civil Rights Program. My successor will be forced to give much of his time and ability as we have done. We have all been criticized, and seldom received a y thanks. This won't change.

Under the law, the County Judge appoints all directors for terms, one of which expires each year and on staggered terms, all serving without pay.

It has been a pleasure to serve with you over the years — my first appointment being by County Judge Cook, serving on the Site Committee, then Building Committee, and the hospital built with funds under the Hill Burton Act — $300,000.

and people voted bond issue of $300,000. The building tax was collected for two years before the building was finally built under County Judge Garrett, under whom I was appointed as director. Thus, my service has been over a period of some four years. The hospital building tax has all been paid and all bonds retired and now no taxes whatever — (from Federal, State, County, nor City) — with which to maintain equipment and operate the hospital.

Since Medicare will be effective July 1st, and many will be seeking hospitalization, it will be a burden to take care of the many who will be needing attention. Many with no funds except Medicare and crowded conditions will be a problem to the administrator and you members of the Board, especially with the shortage of help in nurses, in laboratory, x-ray service, and other facilities necessary for successful operation of a hospital, coupled with the fact that under Civil Rights, many government employees will be looking over your shoulder on every move you make. We are sorely in need of more help — nurses, technicians, and laboratory — and no funds with which to pay for expert service in a highly technical field.

Under Civil Rights Act, and their demands, it is going to be, as I see it, necessary to have a complete new bookkeeping system, and more help needed to make monthly reports to Washington, and better pay for more employees. How you can do this, with limited funds, I don't know, since the only source of revenue is rent of rooms and pay for meals, it may be necessary to raise the price of rooms.

My best wishes go with you. Yours sincerely, ROY ANDERSON

Epochal Moment in Battle of the Bulge Saratoga to Absorb Negro District

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — Two all-white Howard County school districts agreed Monday to absorb an all-Negro district that lies within their boundaries.

The Mineral Springs and Saratoga districts agreed to assume responsibility for educating Negro children in their respective areas.

The Negroes now attend the Howard County Training School, a district to itself although overlapping the other districts.

The agreement was in an order submitted to U.S. District Judge Oren Harris, who had previously asked the three districts to submit a final desegregation proposal by June 28.

The Saratoga District will take over the plant facilities of the Howard County Training School because the facilities are located inside the Saratoga District.

The order said that all three districts and the federal government, which started the legal action, had agreed to a desegregation plan to begin this September.

Grades 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 1 and 12 would be desegregated at Saratoga, and grades 1, 2, 3, 4, 11 and 12 at Mineral Springs this September under a freedom-of-choice plan. Remaining grades would be desegregated in September 1967.

"This is an unusual situation," Harris said of the three districts at a pre-trial hearing last week. "There is no other like it as far as I know."

The government brought the three districts into a suit which involved the Nashville and Childress districts in Howard County.

The Childress and Nashville districts consolidated and the suit against them was dismissed.

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — On a clear day I can see my navel now. At last, at last!

That may not be a landmark in world history. But, as every ex-fatty knows, it is an epochal moment in the long battle of the bulge.

Naturally, you must be burning with curiosity about how it came about.

Well, it happened at roughly 6:07 a.m.—give or take a minute or two—a week ago Monday.

I had taken off my pajama tops and, like millions of other red-blooded Americans at this hour, was trying to get my heart started by cautiously bending down and touching my toes several times.

Suddenly I became aware of a strange dimple in my midriff. At first I thought it was just another ripple in the blubber. I punched it tentatively with my index finger.

No, there was no doubt about it. It was no mere blubber crease. It was my navel, the same navel I had last glimpsed in 1959 before a vacation in France shot my weight up to a record 217½ pounds. Since then its existence had been to me only a matter of hearsay.

Quickly I showered, shaved and dressed and at breakfast informed my wife of the wondrous event.

"You're dreaming, Rover boy," she said. But when she was finally convinced, she said, "that deserves a celebration."

She went to the refrigerator and came back waving a big bonus stalk of celery.

"Can I put salt on it?" I asked.

"Why not?" she said. "Live it up, kid. You've earned it."

My navel victory came to me at the half-way point. Since the start of the year, I had taken off 23 pounds in my campaign to drop from 216 pounds to my best courting weight while in college.

Having dropped to 193 pounds, I have developed a fool-proof diet which you may find useful, too, if your silhouette has changed from willowy to billywoy.

It is simple, easy to follow, and—best of all—doesn't require you to rent a computer to count your calories.

What you do is to take a milk bottle and at mealtimes scrape into it everything on your plate that looks good to eat. Then you eat whatever is left on the plate.

When the milk bottle is full of mingled, uneaten goodies—bread, butter, gravy, pie, cake, ice cream—you take it out and bury it in the back yard at night, when the neighbors can't see what you're doing.

By this ritual you are symbolically burying your old fat self.

Plane Crashes Into Homes, Some Killed

By HARRY NASH
HAMPTON, Va. (AP) — A Marine Corps bomber, aflame after colliding with a sister jet, hurtled into a suburban neighborhood of small frame homes here Monday night, all but devastating a three-block area. The other plane fell harmlessly into Chesapeake Bay.

There were conflicting reports on how many residents were killed, ranging from two or three to eight. Forty were injured and 11 remained hospitalized.

Hampton police at first said three bodies had been recovered and later tentatively put the death toll at eight. But at 4 a.m. today Desk Sgt. N.E. Whitlow said he could account for only two.

In Richmond, the Virginia State Police said they had had reports from troopers of three dead.

Six to eight of the modest, two-bedroom homes were demolished and an estimated 20 others damaged to some degree in the housing development near Buckroe Beach, a summer playground on the bay.

The two-seater A6 Intruder attack bomber plowed into the development from the south at 8:57 p.m. Seconds earlier, it had collided at 400 m.p.h. with another Intruder at 2,000 feet.

All of the four Marines aboard the two aircraft ejected safely and landed near the second bomber in Chesapeake Bay off Norfolk. Three were picked up by a Coast Guard helicopter, the fourth by a private boat.

The crash occurred not far from the sprawling Fordham shopping center and the homes of many Air Force and Army men from nearby Langley Air Force Base and Ft. Monroe.

No Leaders With Rights Marchers

By DON KEE
LOUISE, Miss. (AP) — H. L. Montgomery says he "had a intuition" that the Mississippi civil rights marchers would come by to see him.

That was two weeks ago, he says, and before the march leaders decided to desert U.S. 51—the route from Memphis, Tenn., to Jackson planned by James H. Meredith—and meander through the Mississippi countryside.

The marchers ended their most uneventful and longest day's trek—17½ miles—late Monday pitching their three tents on the hardpacked ground of a big hog lot on Montgomery's farm located just outside this community of 481 persons.

Today's plans were indefinite. And none of the chief leaders were around.

Paratroopers Smash Into Cong Hideout

By ROBERT TUCKMAN
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — American paratroopers smashed today into a jungle hideout where 600 Viet Cong threw up a bitter defense from log bunkers and criss-cross tunnels.

At last report a pitched battle had been raging for 36 hours and 69 Communists were known killed.

Some 2,000 or more men of the 101st Airborne Division and the 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division were battling the Viet Cong in the jungled highlands of Phu Yen Province, about 15 miles north of the American coastal enclave at Tuy Hoa.

It was the second major action for the 101st Airborne in two weeks. From June 7 to June 14 the paratroopers battled North Viet Nam's 24th Regiment on the Kontum Plateau, 120 miles northwest of Tuy Hoa, and estimated they killed more than 1,000 of the 1,400 to 2,000 Red troops opposing them.

A military spokesman said the new battle resulted from an American sweep operation named Nathan Hale. Monday the Viet Cong attacked paratroop units in an open valley and airborne cavalrymen were rushed in as reinforcements.

During the night the combined American force had fortified enemy positions. At least a battalion of hard-core Viet Cong was reported dug in and ready.

Heavy fighting continued through the night and today, the spokesman reported.

With the four-month Buddhist uprising fast crumbling under the military junta's firmness, tri Quang's chief rival the moderate Thich Tam Chau, appealed to Ky to "assure the life and liberty of the venerable Tri Quang and all other monks who led the struggle" against the regime.

Reports circulated in Saigon that Tri Quang, 42, would be brought to the capital. A police officer in Hue said he had been put in protective custody to shield him from the Viet Cong.

The government's action against the chief of the Buddhist struggle movement showed its confidence that it had all but smashed the militant Buddhist minority's campaign for an immediate restoration of civilian rule.

Court Session Ends on a Sour Note

By BARRY SCHWEID
WASHINGTON (AP) — A year of Supreme Court decisions broadening individual and civil rights has ended on a sour note for civil rights workers and thousands of prison inmates.

In quick order Monday at its final session of the 1965-66 term, the high court:

1. Ruled 5 to 4 no federal law gives civil rights "advocates" — or anyone else — immunity from state prosecution under state and local laws.
